

Gray, Ms. Ross will continue in the family tradition of service and commitment to the community.

It is unfortunate for the children of district 13 that Ms. Ross no longer lends her special touch to the New York City Board of Education. As she becomes accustomed to a well-deserved retirement, it is certain, however, that she will continue in some capacity as an inspiration to colleagues, parents, children, and staff. Her professional know-how and her sharp political savvy have in no way lessened her personal warmth and caring. In the 11th Congressional District she is appreciated as a great pillar of dedication and empowerment. Margaret Ross is a "point-of-light" providing a bright and glowing inspiration for all to follow.

A TRIBUTE TO TOM BATES

HON. RONALD V. DELLUMS

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, November 9, 1995

Mr. DELLUMS. Mr. Speaker, I rise to commend the work of California Assemblyman Tom Bates on the occasion of the tribute dinner in his honor on November 11, 1995. His distinguished record in the California Legislature includes 214 bills signed into law and a public policy legacy that spans 24 years. His foresights in putting forward innovative, visionary bills has earned him the strong support of his constituents who have reelected him 10 times to the assembly, often with more votes than were cast in any other assembly district.

First elected in 1976, Mr. Bates played a central role in the framing of virtually all progressive social service policy in the State. He is the lead Democrat in the assembly on welfare reform issues affecting those with disabilities, foster care, senior services and the myriad social issues that confront the State. His work has touched the lives of disadvantaged Californians, helping to build a State that recognizes the potential of all its citizens.

He served as chair of the assembly human service committee for 12 years—the longest any legislator has ever chaired that committee. He is currently the committee vice chair. We have benefited nationally from Tom Bates' work as well. He convened the first hearings in the country on the feminization of poverty and founded and served as cochair of the Joint Task Force on the Changing Family, the first such legislative task force in the country. These initiatives sparked national discussion and action on the need to support today's changing families.

He has shared his expertise in social welfare with legislatures throughout the country, chairing the National Conference of State Legislatures Committee on Children and Families and cochairing the NCSL on Welfare Reform.

Among his many accomplishments in social service legislation are laws to provide the first State funding for independent living centers, establish innovative mental health programs, provide integrated long-term care services to the elderly, strengthen child support laws and help families move from welfare to work.

First and foremost, Tom Bates is an environmentalist. He has served on the assembly of natural resources committee for 19 years, longer than any current member of the legislature. He has consistently received a 100 percent proenvironment voting score. Under his guidance, key policies have been adopted to preserve and enhance the environment. An outspoken advocate of open space preservation, he has been instrumental in creating, preserving and developing nearly two dozen parks and recreational areas in California's East Bay communities. Most notably, he carried the legislation to create the Eastshore State Park which, when completed, will be one of California's premier urban waterfront parks, running along San Francisco Bay shoreline from Oakland to Richmond.

At a time when many elected officials govern by poll results, Tom Bates is guided by an innate sense of fairness, a commitment to equality and an unyielding willingness to work on the behalf of his constituents. California and the Nation owe him a debt of gratitude for his energetic, visionary and far reaching public service.

OPPORTUNITY AND CHALLENGE

HON. SOLOMON P. ORTIZ

OF TEXAS

Thursday, November 9, 1995

Mr. ORTIZ. Mr. Speaker, for many years now, I have joined my colleagues in congratulating the leaders of the Republic of China on Taiwan on their national day. This year, I wish to draw my colleagues' attention to an excellent book written by Frederick Chien, the Republic of China's Foreign Minister.

Taiwan has worked hard to normalize relations between themselves and the Chinese communists, motivated somewhat by fear of military invasion. After summer missile tests, the People's Republic of China are threatening other tests if Taiwan does not abandon its pragmatic diplomacy.

In recent years, in exercising pragmatic diplomacy, Taipei has been able to maintain diplomatic relations with nearly 30 countries and to increase their official representation in other countries. Furthermore, pragmatic diplomacy has also allowed Taipei to make great progress in joining international organizations. The ROC became an official member of the Asia-Pacific Economic Cooperation in November 1991 and was granted observer status in the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade in September 1992. Meanwhile, Taipei seeks to return to the United Nations.

Foreign Minister Chien's success in implementing pragmatic diplomacy is carefully documented in his new publication: "Opportunity and Challenge", published by Arizona State University. I enjoyed reading Minister Chien's analysis of the post-cold war era and the implications for countries such as Taiwan. The book offered fascinating reading about Chien, a well-bred diplomat, educated at China and at Yale—whose leadership in the late 20th century came at a critical juncture in history. Chien's dedication to his country, to his wife Julia, their children, and his friends, represents the sum total of "Opportunity and Challenge."

"Opportunity and Challenge" is a chronicle of Minister Chien's successes and disappointments during the last 6 years in the ROC's foreign ministry. It is a must reading for anyone interested in the Republic of China's recent diplomatic history. No one individual has occupied a more pivotal place in ROC's diplomatic annals than Fred Chien.

Congratulations to Fred and best wishes to the Republic of China on its national day.

HOLY SAVIOR CHURCH

HON. PAUL E. KANJORSKI

OF PENNSYLVANIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, November 9, 1995

Mr. KANJORSKI. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to bring to the attention of my colleagues the 100th anniversary of the founding of the Holy Savior Church of Wilkes-Barre, PA. This milestone will be commemorated at a banquet on November 12, 1995, and I am proud to have been asked to participate in the celebration.

As one approaches the city of Wilkes-Barre, it is difficult not to notice the twin spires of this beautiful Gothic church. Since 1895, the stone and brick structure has stood as a monument to those whose faith and hard work erected it as a place of worship. The parish began under the able leadership of Rev. John J. Curran. Its parishioners were mostly immigrant coal miners. After working all day in the mines, the miners would come to the construction site to help build the church. Father Curran was a staunch advocate of labor and stood with the miners during the famous strike of 1902.

In fact, President Theodore Roosevelt turned to Father Curran for help in resolving labor disputes with miners during the early part of this century. After Father Curran entered into the labor dispute negotiations, the mineowners surrendered some of their demands and the miners won their first labor victory. A friendship developed between Father Curran and the President, and Roosevelt became a frequent visitor to the parish.

In addition to having a long history of national significance, the Holy Savior Church was blessed to have benefited from the leadership of Msgr. Andrew J. McGowan. During his tenure at the Holy Savior Church, Monsignor McGowan provided spiritual guidance to the many people who came from all over northeastern Pennsylvania to hear his messages. Monsignor McGowan is well known throughout northeastern Pennsylvania as a community leader who brings the values of the church to everyday concerns of ordinary people.

Mr. Speaker, Holy Savior Church is a landmark of great historical significance in northeastern Pennsylvania. It is a tribute to early parishioners who sacrificed so much to build a place to worship and to its modern day parishioners who carry on the tradition of faith in our community. I am pleased to have had the opportunity to bring the proud history of the Holy Savior Church to the attention of this Congress.
